Great-Grandma's Dough

Mary-Kate lives in an out-of-the-way farmhouse. Her great-grandma takes care of her throughout the day. Great-Grandma is nice, but sometimes she has a funny way of talking.

Great-Grandma sometimes called Mary-Kate "the apple of my eye." But Mary-Kate never sees any apples in Great-Grandma's eyes!

Today, Great-Grandma said that Mary-Kate ought to help her make some sourdough bread.

"Hold this water I brought," Great-Grandma said. "And come help with the dough in the kitchen."

So Mary-Kate put the water into her hand!

"I bought this good-looking, two-handled bowl and brought it here," Great-Grandma said as she got a bowl from her bag.

"It'll be good for the dough," said Mary-Kate.

"Yes," said Great-Grandma. "It'll fit like a glove!"

So Mary-Kate got a pair of gloves!

Great-Grandma looked through a cookbook full of thought.

"Here's the sourdough recipe," Great-Grandma said. She gave it to Mary-Kate. She added everything, including yeast, and was thorough in stirring the dough.

"This yeast I bought helps the dough grow!" said Great-Grandma.

"How long will it take?" asked Mary-Kate.

"That's a toss-up," said Great-Grandma.

Mary-Kate tossed the cookbook in the air!

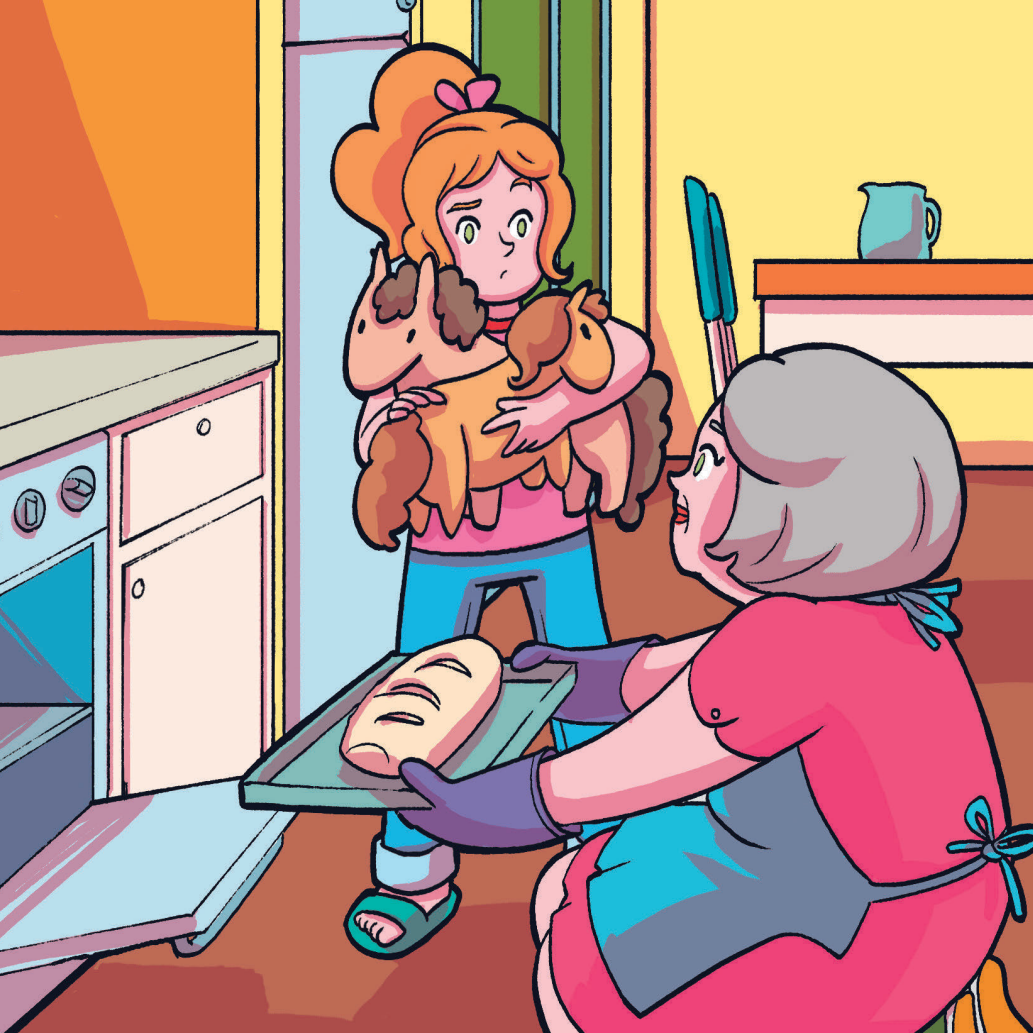

Great-Grandma formed the dough. The pan was overflowing! Then, she put the dough in the oven to bake.

Mary-Kate said, "I can smell the dough throughout the farmhouse! Can I try it now?"

"Just hold your horses, Mary-Kate!" Great-Grandma said.

So, Mary-Kate went to get her toy horses!

The dough was baked into sourdough bread. Great-Grandma and Mary-Kate ate it with jam.

"There is still dough left," Mary-Kate said.
"Can we make it into doughnuts?"

Great-Grandma was kind-hearted when she said, "Well, is the sky blue?"

So, Mary-Kate went outside to check the sky!

"This was fun making sourdough and doughnuts today, Great-Grandma," said Mary-Kate.

"Yes," Great-Grandma said. "You really are the apple of my eye!"

But Mary-Kate still didn't see any apples!
