We are at camp! We slept in a tent without a lamp. Walking about was a risk. You would bump into the bed or the desk! Can we please talk about the bed? It has so many humps, bumps, and lumps! Now I have a limp!

I ask if I can jump in to get rid of my limp. My pals ask too.

“Then, can we bask in the sun?”

I ask.

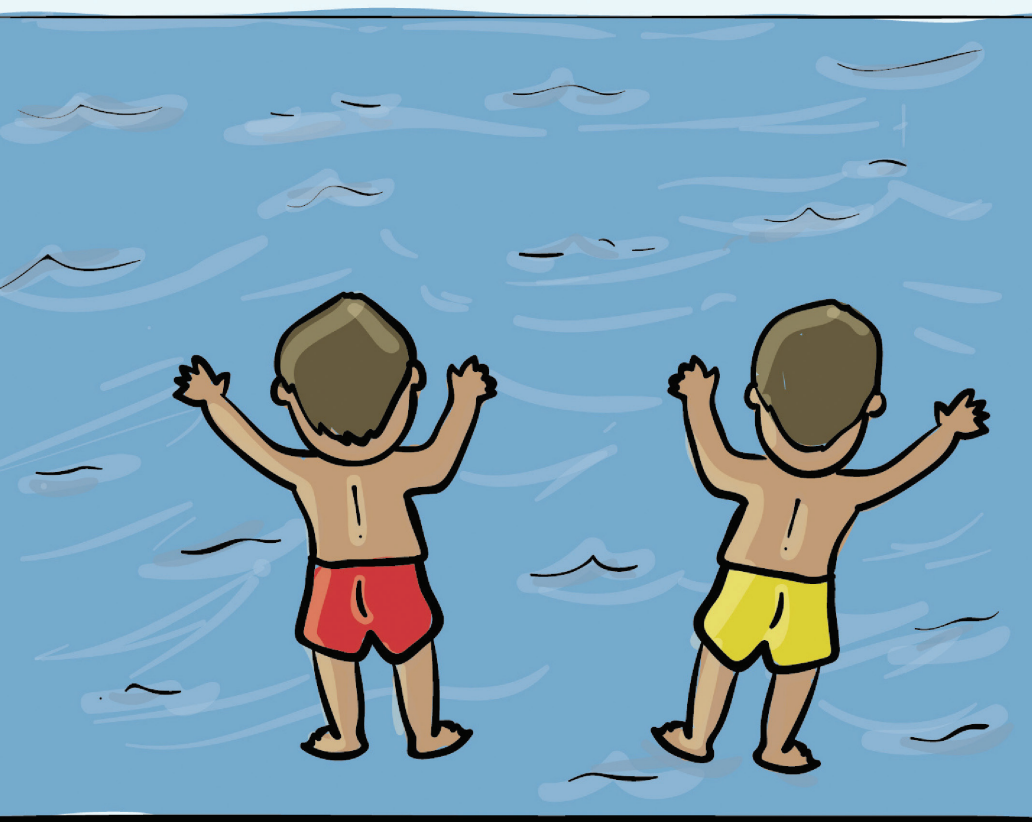

I got rid of my limp!

“Would you like to jump off this ramp with me?” I ask my pal.

We jump off a ramp that is by a stump. We would bask in the sun on a raft until dusk. I love camp!

We go for a brisk run. Who will get back to camp fast? Without a limp, I should win! I pump my legs. But Don is the champ! He stomps all of us! He passes the stump and pumps his legs.

Oh no! Don falls on the stump.
Thump! His leg has a bump and begins to get plump. We have the task to get him back to camp.

"I am not a wimp. Please let me limp," says Don.

"I would not risk your leg," I say.

Don's leg has no bump now!
We play in the damp sand. I dump sand in my hand. The damp sand is best to stomp on and stamp things in.

We see a bump in the sand.

What is it? We risk a look.

A plump bug! He jumps and slumps back into the sand.

Camp is so fun!
