When Adora the bear was born,
her mom and dad adored her.
In short, that's how she got her name, Adora!

Adora was kind to all, for stuffed bears could make wishes take form and more!

Every morning, the animals in the forest came to talk with Adora and her pals.

Adora longed to see more of the big, wide world outside of their small forest. Adora and her pals came up with a plan to go forth and explore.

Adora's parents supported her wish to explore with her pals.

Before they went forth, Adora and her pals packed their bags. They packed snacks because all bears, even stuffed ones, adore snacks!

In the morning, they hugged their parents and then they set off for their trip. They went north to the North Pole. It was fun to sled and make a fort.

Before it got too cold, Adora said they were done. They formed a line at the port and set forth to explore more.

They saw wild horses kicking up a storm of dust as they tore across the sand.

The sun started to scorch them. Adora said it was time for a short trip to the shore.

They wore sun visors and sank
in the soft sand of the shore.
Adora looked for whales in the waves.

At sunset, they spotted orcas splashing. The orca pod made them miss their loved ones back in the forest.

Adora said, "We're done. No more!
In short, let's set out for home."

They stopped and shipped out for the night.

The best part of exploring is telling grand tales with the ones you adore!
