It is a dreary morning before school. Kat is deciding what to wear. Today is yearbook photo day!

Kat does not like her photo from last year. It makes her weary just thinking about it.

She stands tall and says, "I must dress with flair and wear my best dress!"

It was unfair that it was a rare, dreary morning. Kat was staring, trying to decide what to wear for yearbook photo day!

Last year, her photo was not clear. It makes her weary thinking about it. "I won't despair. I'll find something with flair."

"Now what will I wear?" Kat is near tears as she stares around the room.

Her dress was on the chair! Her fear disappeared, and she could think clearly again.

George also prepares for the yearbook photo.

His mom helps brush his hair.

He puts socks on his bare hooves with care. He stares at them.

"Does this pair match what I am wearing?"

Kat appears at the top of the stairs with flair! The time to go is near.

"I hear the bus," Kat says.

She shares a hug with Mom and disappears through the door.

George meets Kat near the bus stop.

At school, George shares his fear that he didn't wear the right pair of socks.

"I love your socks with the pear!" says Kat.

"They ARE my favorite fruit," declares George.

"Don't worry, I'll dare to go first," Kat says.

Clearly, Kat has no fear.

Later, they get to see their photos in the yearbook.

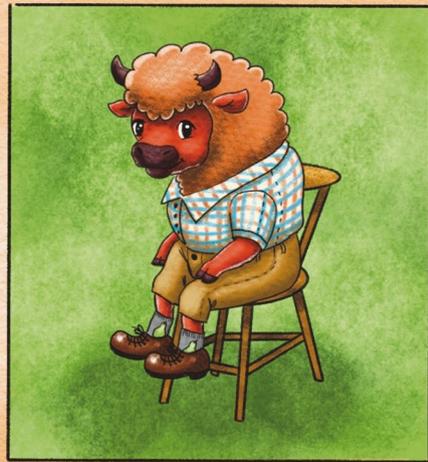

"You do have flair!" declares George.

"Your pear socks make an appearance, and they look great!" laughs Kat.

Kat's and George's fear disappears as they realize what they care most about is friendship.
