Andrew was having his first sleepover with his true blue pal, Lewis.

He had it planned. He had a new skate ramp to use until Mom called them in for curfew. He had "Super Skate Crew" for streaming and plenty of fruit and juice.

When Lewis arrived, they threw on their helmets and grabbed their boards.

Andrew skated up the new ramp, flew through the air, and almost landed on a sewer lid.

Andrew did a quick kick flip and missed the sewer lid. He was fine. No bruises!

"That was awesome, Andrew!"
cheered Lewis as he threw his board on the curb.

That was when they saw
Mrs. Shue, who lives a few blocks from Andrew. Andrew knew by her look that something had happened.

Mrs. Shue's macaw, Brewster, had picked up her bag of jewelry. Brewster must have thought it was a bag of bird chew toys!

When Mrs. Shue screamed a few times, the bird got scared and flew out of the house.

Now Mrs. Shue didn't have a clue where Brewster had gone!

Andrew knew what to do. He ran inside and grabbed some cashew nuts.

Then, Andrew and Lewis hopped on their boards to catch up with Brewster.

The kids were lucky. Brewster was tired and flew to a tree to rest.

Andrew crawled along the grass so he wouldn't scare the bird. He held up a few cashews.

"What if Brewster claws you?" asked Lewis.

"He's just tired and hungry. Brewster won't hurt us," Andrew said.

Brewster's trust grew when he saw Mrs. Shue. He flew down with a happy squawk and chewed the cashews.

"Whew, that wasn't quite the day I had planned," said Andrew with a yawn.

"We could have made our own Super Skate Crew show tonight!" laughed Lewis.
