Wrigley was a knight for King Brantly. Knight Wrigley lived in a spotless castle with a moat wrapped around it. The garden was beautifully maintained and known for its climbing vines.

King Brantly rarely made people a knight during his reign. But Wrigley was helpful and fearless. The king knew he could assign him anything and Wrigley would joyfully do it. Wrigley kneeled before the king and became a knight.

Early one morning, there was a gator in the moat. There was a sign that said, "No Swimming." But just in case, fearless Knight Wrigley wrestled the gator. It nearly bit his thumb!

One day, King Brantly's squire took a wrong turn in the woods. He missed the sign pointing home. Knight Wrigley quickly and carefully searched through every bit of the woods. He safely brought the squire back home. The king was so grateful!

Knight Wrigley loved to ride horses. He rode his horse, Wrangler, daily and combed his hair. Once he had an awful wreck and was knocked off Wrangler. He scraped his knuckles and scratched his knee. He had a knot on his head. He fearlessly climbed back on Wrangler and tried again.

Another day, a cat climbed a tall tree and got stuck on a limb.

Knight Wrigley unwrapped smelly cat treats to get the cat down.

The cat wanted to get down badly and meowed loudly. Knight Wrigley skillfully climbed the tree and out onto the limb. With an armful of treats, he brought the cat down safely.

Without a wrinkle on his spotless knight uniform, he easily saved the day again and again. Knight Wrigley was truly fearless! King Brantly wouldn't be able to reign without the knight's selfless daily help.
